

Oxford Studies of Time in Language and Thought

Edited by Kasia M. Jaszczolt and Louis de Saussure

This new series identifies and promotes ground-breaking research on the human concept of time and its representation in language. It aims to advance the development of satisfactory theories to explain and account for such basic matters as: representing tenses; the interaction of the temporal information conveyed by tense, aspect, temporal adverbial and context; conceptualizations and the ontology of time; and relations between events, states, eventualities, facts, propositions, sentences, and utterances.
